Summer in the Smokies

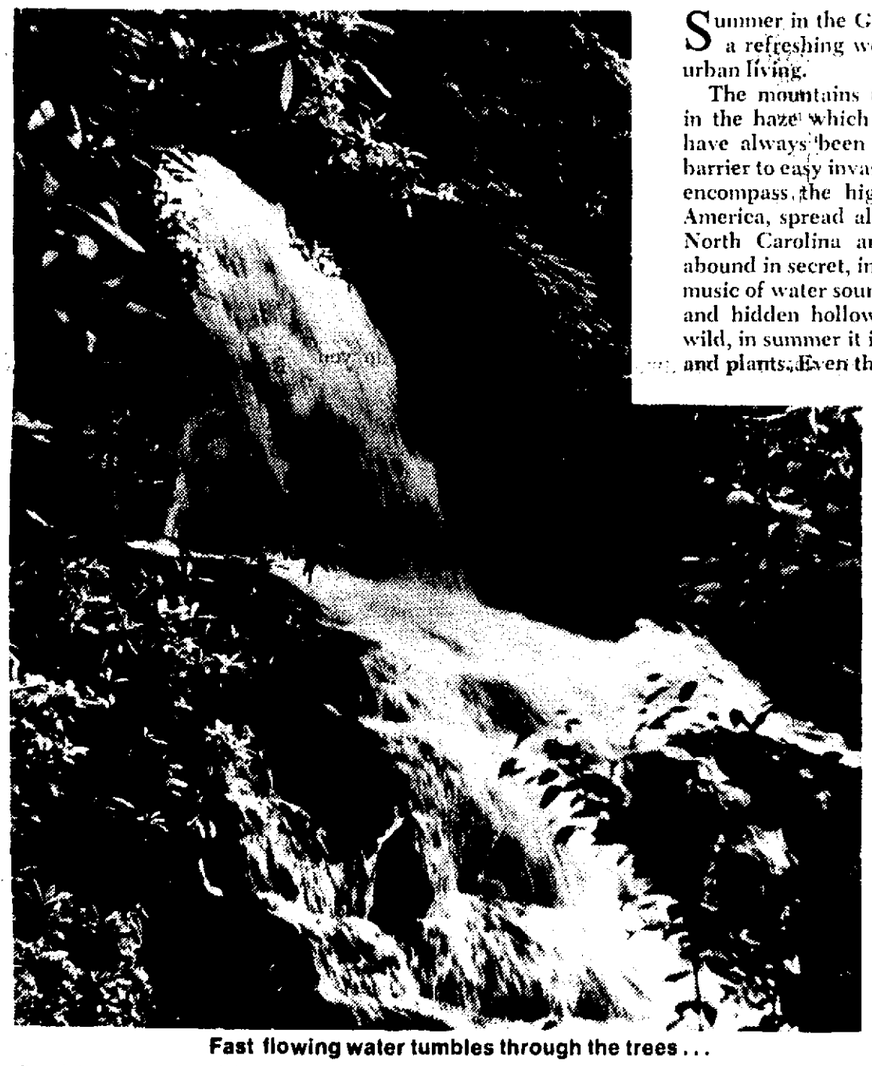

Summer in the Great Smoky Mountains is a refreshing world away from modern, urban living.

The mountains themselves, often veiled in the haze which gives them their name, have always been a natural retreat and a barrier to easy invasion by civilization. They encompass the highest terrain in Eastern America, spread along the border between North Carolina and Tennessee. Yet they abound in secret, intimate places, where the music of water sounds in descending valleys and hidden hollows. And if they are still wild, in summer it is a wilderness of flowers and plants. Even the most rugged slopes are softened by dense, green forest.

In the late nineteenth century there was some pioneer settlement, and traces of this remain. A few farmers keep up the pastoral tradition and there are carefully maintained farmsteads, grouped near visitors centers, with historical echoes of early struggles against the wilds.

But today man's interest in the Smokies is mainly recreation: the enjoyment of natural beauty and of opportunities to camp, hike, fish, watch birds and photograph wild animals (including the well-known, amiable bears).

Ancient rocks have been weathered into dramatic forms.

Fast flowing water tumbles through the trees . . .

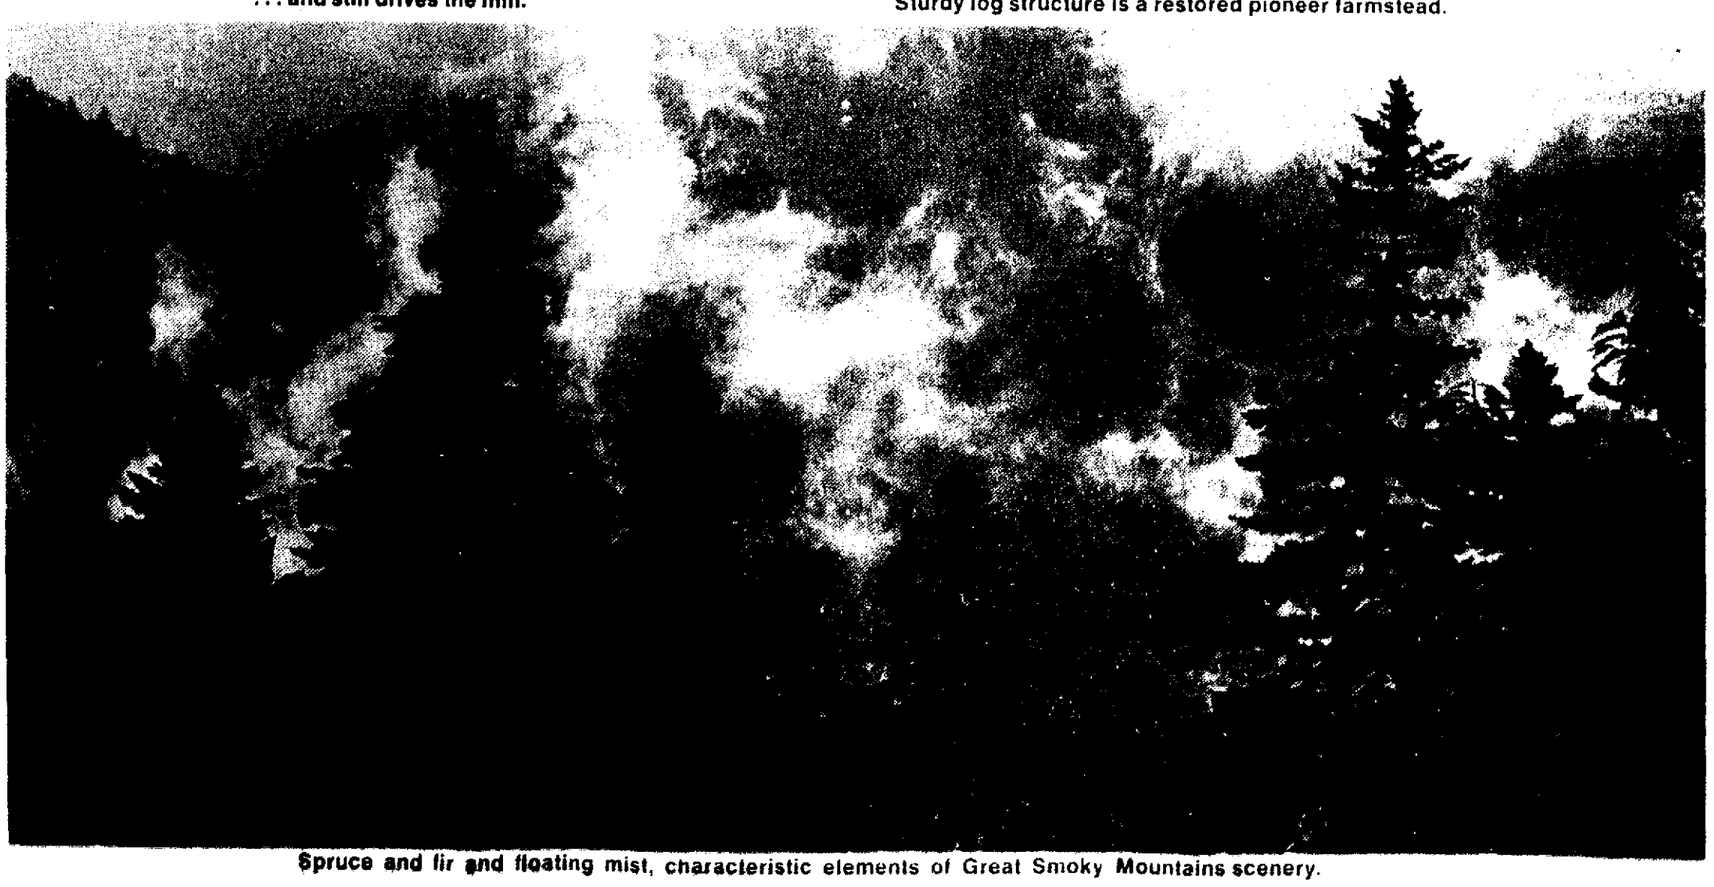

. . . and still drives the mill.

Sturdy log structure is a restored pioneer farmstead.

Mists of dawn shimmer over the running water.

Spruce and fir and floating mist, characteristic elements of Great Smoky Mountains scenery.

Television and Radio

By JERRY BUCK
ap television-Radio Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — In television terminology, writer-producer Leslie Stevens is a "hyphenate."

A hyphen separates the two functions, but in reality they usually operate as one. Television is a producer's medium because if he doesn't write the scripts in the beginning he surely will rewrite it before it reaches the screen.

This season Stevens is writing and producing two NBC shows, the Doug McClure segment of "The Men From Shiloh," which formerly was "The Virginian," and the "McCloud" segment of "Four in One."

"A writer often becomes a producer to see that no one messes around with what he's written," Stevens said. "He has to learn new skills. I went from writer to director to producer and each was to protect the writer."

Stevens has a round, freckled face and golden hair, looks 35 and admits to being 46. He says he stays young because he thrives on the adversary relationship between the creators and the studios and networks.

"The aggravations? That's fun," he said. "It gets to be a tremendous game outwitting the networks.

"Say you're going over the schedule. You're going to lose an actor. You can't finish the film. How do you solve it? I'm doing something creative and something I like and I don't have the sensation of working. Not ever."

Stevens wrote such Broadway hits as "Bullfight" and "Marriage-Go-Round," which he later produced as a movie. He created and produced the series "Stoney Burke," "Outer Limits" and the movie version and first episodes of "To Catch a Thief." Last year he produced the Tony Franciosa part of "Name of the Game."

He writes his scripts in longhand and says it gives him a greater sensory feeling for the scenes. "When I do a heavy scene I get very emotional and you can see it in the marks I make," he said.

The drug rehabilitation scenes currently being shown on ABC's daytime serial "One Life To Live" were taped at New York's Odyssey House using staff members and drug addicts.

The story involves a girl in the serial who becomes hooked on LSD and enters Odyssey House for treatment. The group therapy sessions between the actress and the real addicts were taped unrehearsed and without a script. The addicts say the scenes present a realistic view of the long-term rehabilitation required to beat drugs.

Cynthia Lowry is on vacation.

YOUTH ASKED FOR IT!

This column is for young people, their problems and pleasures, their troubles and fun. As with the rest of Helen Help Us!, it welcomes laughs but won't dodge a serious question with a brush off.

Send your teenage questions to YOUTH ASKED FOR IT, care of Helen Help Us! this newspaper.

WELL DONE, KIDS!

Dear Readers:

I don't often print poetry, but two contributions from 14-year-olds this week merit sharing with you. The first is sent by a friend of the author who says she is too shy to submit it herself:

GONE

Where is the love
We all want to give?
Where is the life
We all want to live?
Where is the peace
We all look for?
Where is the Key?
Where is the door?
Where is the money
The poor will need?
Where is the book
For the blind to read?
Where is the voice
All the deaf will hear?
where is the place
where the water is clear?
where are the men
Who fought and lost?
where are the people
To pay the cost?
Where are the faces
To turn and say
"We are the ones
Who threw it away." —SUNNY

And the next:

WHAT IS LIFE?

"What is life?"
Asked a little boy.
One answer was,
"Son, life is joy."
He asked again,
And someone said,
For me, little boy,
Life is dead."
He asked it over
And someone replied,
"For me, little boy,
Life is a lie."
He asked once more
And someone swore,
"For me little boy,
Life is war."
He questioned again
And someone stated,
"For me little boy,
Life is hatred."
And then he said,
In a voice like a dove,
"For me, people,
Life is Love." —ROSIE

YOUTH BEAT

DISK TRICKS—If you're wondering what happened to Blood, Sweat & Tears, you can stop worrying. They're back with a new LP called Blood, Sweat & Tears 3, which is not to be confused with Tom Paxton 6, which is also out (and also very good). B,S&T offer up "Fire and Rain," "Lonesome Suzie," "The Battle" and a lot of other good things in their usual smooth style. A solid job by one of the best bands around.

ANOTHER DILLY—Lester Dill, our favorite caveman, reports from Meramec Caverns in Stanton, Mo., that young couples are flocking to the place to get married in his underground chapel, which is a stone's throw from Loot Rock, where Jesse James and his gang used to split up their loot. Lester observes, "Young couples today would rather start their marriages on the rocks than have them end there." A stand-up comic he'll never be.

INSIDE STORY—The nation's DJs seem to be confused by a record called "Gimme Dat Ding," by the Pipkins. It's getting a big play, but the jocks don't know what it's all about. So we'll tell you (and them). "Gimme Dat Ding" is a song from a children's TV show in England. It's about a grandfather clock that loses its sense of time and has to get its beat back, with a little help from a magical metronome. This comes from Tony Burrows, who sings lead with the Pipkins, so you can take it as straight scoop.

New Threat Charged to the 'Pill'

LONDON (AP) — New evidence licking the contraceptive pill with blood clotting in women who have undergone operations was reported today by two British doctors.

Prof. Richard Doll, professor of medicine at Radcliffe Infirmary, Oxford, and a colleague, Dr. Martin Vessey, wrote in the British Medical Journal that women taking oral contraceptives were three or four times more likely to suffer vein and lung blood clots after surgery than nonusers.

Parkinson's first law for bridge players is that any time you give a man a chance to make a mistake there is a distinct probability that he will make it.

Of course, there are plenty of players who just make mistakes without any real reason. East wasn't one of that group. In fact, he was one of the top players of the late '30s playing in a rubber bridge game at New York's Cavendish Club.

South was the late Edward Hymes Jr., one of the great players of the day. Eddy found himself in rather a normal six no-trump contract that presented better than an even chance for success. Specifically, he needed a successful diamond finesse, which represented an even chance, but there was a possibility of a defensive error if the finesse lost.

Eddy won the heart lead with the queen. Then he went right after diamonds so as to keep the exchange of information between East and West at a minimum.

He made the proper lead of a low diamond. West showed out but Eddy didn't falter at all. He rose with dummy's ace and led a low diamond right back.

This gave East quite a problem. His partner had signaled with the eight of spades on the first diamond lead. That signal clearly indicated that he held either the ace or the king, but which one was it?

If it were the ace, East could and should take that diamond right away. If it were the king, the play was to duck and keep diamond control. East would have known what to do if the problem arose later on, at that time he didn't know what to do and went wrong.

Scarves Tell a Story

Thyroid Gland Regulates Fuel Burned in Body

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

Q—What are the functions of the thyroid gland? What tests are given to determine abnormal function?

A—The thyroid puts out a hormone, thyroxin, which regulates the rate at which fuel is burned in the body. The basal metabolic rate determination has been largely replaced by (1) the protein-bound iodine test, (2) the butanol extractable iodine test and (3) the uptake of radioactive iodine by the thyroid. All three tests are increased in persons with an overactive thyroid.

Q—My doctor is treating me for hyperthroidism and myocardial ischemia. Do the two conditions usually go together?

A—Overactivity of the thyroid causes a fast and sometimes irregular pulse. It may lead to enlargement of the heart and heart failure. It does not cause myocardial ischemia (coronary heart disease) but it does aggravate it.

Q—What is malignant exophthalmos? What is Werner's syndrome?

A—Malignant exophthalmos (acute protusion of the eyeballs) is a complication of an overactive thyroid. Werner's syndrome is premature senility. The two are not related.

Q—My thyroid was removed two years ago. I am taking Cytomel. Are there any side effects from this drug?

A—Sodium liothyronine (Cytomel) is a synthetic thyroid hormone. Too large a dosage may cause headaches, nervous tension, irritability, sweating and a fast pulse.

Q—I am 17. My doctor says I have an overactive thyroid. He is giving me Tapazole. Now I have cold hands, a breaking out on my face and shoulders, a gain in weight and episodes of mental confusion. What do you advise?

A—The breaking out is probably juvenile acne. The other symptoms are most likely due to too much Tapazole. The dosage should be adjusted to your individual need.

Q—About 18 months ago my eyes started to bulge and my doctor gave me radioactive iodine for an overactive thyroid. My eyes still bulge a little. What do you advise?

A—Further steps should be taken to control the activity of your thyroid through drugs or surgery.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Now's the time to master scarf tricks—the more the merrier. The new six-foot lengths should be prime inspiration to individualists to add pizazz to sober-hued longuettes.

Tied coquettishly around the head or Indian-style across the brow, wound round and round the neck or falling to midcalf the long, long scarf can be counted on to double the flattery of the lengthened silhouettes. Any scarf trick is winning fashion strategy if the long end swings freely with Aquarian age nonchalance.

A new concept of the signature scarf as a story-telling medium comes from avant-garde designer Geoffrey Howard. His Frimmel scarf group for Baar and Beards presents the romantic misadventures of a nonhero in laugh-provoking style. Art Deco background designs in luscious colors set off the bright cartoon panels.

Howard's Frimmel scarves are designed to be read with a chuckle by admiring passersby. In fact, he sees, "Please let me read your scarf," as a new opening gambit for ambitious girl watchers.

The first series presents "Park Bench," "They Shoot Horses," and other provocative titles for Frimmel's adventures—each a romantic blunder.

The character, Frimmel, originally was set to take off in shaggy dog stories. Howard's inspiration was a mischievous poodle named Frimmel who shared his studio. But one night Frimmel left his dog drawings on the floor and his pooch ruined them. He tore up the mess and recreated Frimmel as a nonhero male.

And Frimmel is getting around. Sheffield will have a Frimmel watch designed by Howard; Gia has a Frimmel handbag and Hattie Carnegie will have a Frimmel pin in the line. Posters and umbrellas are next for our popular nonhero.

Migrant Treatment Criticized

By PEGGY SIMPSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Doctors investigating conditions of migrant farm workers in Texas and Florida say they found "thousands of our fellow citizens manipulated and managed in such a way as to reduce them to sub-human status."

In preliminary reports to a Senate subcommittee, the doctors told of medieval living quarters, dangerous working conditions, a death rate for mothers and infants up to a third higher than the nacional average.

The doctors are part of the Field Foundation team that sent shock waves across the nation three years ago with its report of hunger and malnutrition in Mississippi.

"The field trip to Mississippi in May 1967 uncovered hunger and misery of a degree which startled and outraged us," the report said.

"The succeeding three years have shown modest improvement ... but this time in Florida, we find destitution and exploitation of men, women and children which we would be ashamed to describe were we not so horrified by their presence."

In Texas, the report continued, "Intestinal parasitism was a striking finding Rickets, scurvy, pellagra, ariboflavinosis, Vitamin A deficiency and protein malnutrition were prominent."

Dr. Henry S. Lipscomb of the Baylor College of Medicine in Houston said "recently there have been three deaths from polio - a strong indication of the lack of basic medical service and innoculations in this area."

Dr. Ray Wheeler said one Florida camp on the edge of a swamp "was, I am certain, the closest equivalent to slave quarters that could exist in what we consider to be a free society."

He said housing units had been hauled in on trucks and set up off the ground on concrete blocks. His guide told him the "camp has just opened and will be moved again in a few months to avoid inspection."

Dr. Allan C. Mermann compared the living quarters in a camp near Homestead, Fla., with the prisons of the Spanish Inquisition.

He said long, cinder-block sheds were divided into single rooms without heat, and contain a single electric outlet.

"Cooking is done on a kerosene stove whose smoke covers the walls, there being no vent or chimney," Mermann said. "The absence of refrigeration and storage space provides major difficulties for a family living in an 8 by 14-foot room. A hundred feet away is the public washroom, divided into sections for men and women but without a water closet and often without seats."

Dr. Gordon Harper said in McAllen, Tex., "We saw a baby with life-threatening cellulitus and sepsis ... who, one block from the McAllen General Hospital, is treated and sent home" instead of receiving proper care in the hospital.

"We find isolation, anger, frustration and fear among people for whom lives lived on the and could be as rich and as filling as the land itself," Mermann said.

BUSY BEES

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) At least 50 cultivated farm crops require the services of the tiny honeybee, University of Kentucky horticulturists say.

One bee, say the horticulturists, can pollinate hundreds of flowers a day, and can "airlift a payload almost as heavy as its body weight" in pollen.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

Americans eat about $2 billion worth of potato chips, pretzels, nuts, crackers and other snacks annually. The World Almanac notes that one of America's favorite snacks, the potato chip, was introduced by a Negro chef about 1865. In 1925, A. A. Walter & Company of Albany, N.Y., built the first plant for the exclusive manufacture of potato chips.

McLain Fails to Win for White Sox

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Denny McLain is delivering the goods, as promised, for the Detroit Tigers ... even though he has nothing to show for it.

McLain failed to win, or finish, for the fifth time in as many starts Friday night but the Tigers continued to gain ground in the American League East with a 4-3 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

The White Sox knocked out McLain, reinstated on July 1 after a half-season suspension for 1967 gambling activities, in the eighth inning, but were beaten in the ninth by Dick McAuliffe's run-scoring single.

The victory, coupled with Baltimore's 6-5, 10-inning loss to Minnesota, sent the Tigers within five games of the first-place Orioles.

California bombarded Washington 10-0 and remained four games off the Twins' West Division pace; the New York Yankees drubbed Oakland 7-1; Boston downed Milwaukee 8-2 and Cleveland topped Kansas City 6-0 in other AL games.

In the National League, Pittsburgh edged Cincinnati 4-3; Los Angeles nipped the New York Mets 1-0 in 10 innings; St. Louis trimmed Atlanta 11-6; Montreal whipped San Francisco 7-3; Houston beat the Chicago Cubs 5-2 and Philadelphia bounced San Diego 8-3.

Minnesota's battery of Ron Perranoski and Tom Tischinski short-circuited the Orioles. Perranoski hurled three hitless innings or relief and gained his sixth victory to go with 21 saves. Reserve catcher Rischinski scored the tying run in the ninth and drove in the winning run with a 10th inning single.

California's Clyde Wright flipped a four-hitter and slammed two singles and a homer on the way to his first complete game since July 3, when he pitched a no-hitter against Oakland. Jim Fregosi hit two homers and Roger Repoz drove in four runs with a homer and a single.

Curt Blefary capped a four-run burst in the fourth with his 100th career homer and the Yankees went on the flatten Oakland behind Mel Stottlemyre, who won for the first time since June 20.

Billy Conigliaro knocked in three runs witha triple and single, and Dick Schofield drove in three with a bases-loaded triple, leading the Red Sox to their fourth straight victory.

Rookie Steve Dunning checked Kansas City on two hits and struck out 10 before giving way to reliever Phil Hennigan in the ninth. Eddie Leon and Buddy Bradford each drove in three runs for the Indians.

Clemente's Homer Wins for Pirates

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

If Roberto Clemente was a general manager, he'd take Cincinnati rookie pitcher Wayne Simpson with his eyes closed. But Clemente is a hitter—so he took Simpson with his eyes wide open.

The veteran Pittsburgh star really was focused in on Simpson's offerings Friday night, slamming them for a single, triple and homer—the homer giving the Pirates' a 4-3 victory over the Reds and increasing to 2½ games their National League East lead over the New York Mets, who lost 1-0 to Los Angeles on Wes Parker's bases-loaded single.

In other NL action, Willie Mays belted a three-run homer, his only hit, to move within one hit of the 3,000 mark in San Francisco'2 7-3 loss to Montreal, St. Louis snapped an eight-game losing streak by trouncing Atlanta 11-6, Houston topped the Chicago Cubs 5-2 and Philadelphia ripped San Diego 8-3.

Cleveland blanked Kansas City 6-0, Detroit nipped the Chicago White Sox 4-3, California walloped Washington 10-0, the New York Yankees took Oakland 7-1, Minnesota shaded Baltimore 6-5 in 10 innings and Boston topped Milwaukee 8-2 in the American League.

Los Angeles won against Tug McGraw, who replaced Mets' ace Tom Seaver after Seaver was lifted for a pinch hitter in the top of the 10th.

Manny Mota opened the inning with a pinch single and was sacrificed to second by Don Sutton. Bill Grabarkewitz was intentionally walked, Willie Davis beat out an infield hit, and Parker delivered his third hit of the game to back the five-hit, 12-strikeout pitching of Sutton, 11-6.

Montreal's Carl Morton, 11-6, had a comfortable 7-0 lead when Mays hit the homer that moved him to within just one hit of another milestone in his brilliant career. Mack Jones sparked the Montreal attack with two bases-empty homers.

Richie Allen helped St. Louis break an eight-game losing streak by smashing a three-run homer, his 26th, and an RBI double. Hank Aaron hit a two-run homer for Atlanta, his 25th.

Houston rode over the Cubs on Hector Torres' bases-loaded triple and Bob Watson's two-run single, and Don Money gunned Philadelphia past San Diego with two bases-empty homers and an RBI double.

Tells It Like It Was

By MARTY RALBOVSKY

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Edwin Douglas Charles, public relations man, poet laureate of locker rooms and former New York Met, is writing a book. It will not be entitled, "How It Felt To Play Third Base on The Day The Mets Became World Champions," or a similarity thereof.

"It's going to be a serious book, a book about the black man in baseball," said Ed Charles. "I'm going to tell what happens to a black man in the game of baseball and how one man — me — made it over the hurdles. I'm writing it all by myself and I'm going to introduce each chapter with a poem. You know, to create atmosphere."

Charles is a public relations man now for a New York record company, after parting from the Mets last winter on anything but amiable terms. But before almost every home game the Mets play, Ed Charles can be seen hanging around the batting cage at Shea Stadium, bantering with his former teammates and opponents, even signing autographs for fans with retentive memories.

"I really don't like talking about what happened between me and the Mets," he will say. "But the story has been told so many different ways that it's distorted now. I didn't want to stay in baseball as a player any longer, but I did want a job somewhere in the front office. I didn't get it.

"That's what my book is all about, what happens to black players when their playing days are over. Baseball is supposed to be the trend-setter in sports in dealing with blacks, but I don't think that's altogether true. There's no place for blacks to go. Somebody is going to write a book about it, sooner or later, so I figured, why not me?"

What happened between Charles and the Mets, precisely, is this: During baseball's annual meetings last winter, the Mets gave Charles his unconditional release as a player. But they offered him a job in their promotion department. He accepted it. Once he reported to work, he had problems with the Mets over his salary (not enough) and his moving expenses from Kansas City (he paid). He wound up walking out on the job. When Johnny Murphy, the Met general manager on whom he blamed the disagreement, died of a heart attack, he considered the incident closed and stopped talking about it.

Now, in open-collared powder blue shirts and tan bell-bottomed slacks, he operates in the gateway far behind home plate at Shea. He has his own photographer with him, and usually the young sons of clients of the record company for which he works. Whenever one of the Mets or their opponents comes over to say hello, he gets them to pose for pictures with the kiddies.

On this night, the St. Louis Cardinals were in town and Charles asked first Richie Allen and then Joe Torre to pose with two young boys and himself. Then Lou Brock came by, shook hands, posed, and went back to the cage. As he was leaving, Ken Singleton, the newest Met, came over, introduced himself and, of course, posed.

"I don't really enjoy doing this sort of thing," said Charles. "But I enjoy being around the Mets, and all baseball players. It's hard making a clean break after all these years. I feel uncomfortable walking on the field now, like I just don't belong here any more. I don't even have a press pass, know what I mean?"

As Charles was talking, the Mets were warming up in front of their dugout on the first base line. A stray ball rolled over and stopped at Charles' feet. He picked it up, then saw Donn Clendenon holding his glove up.

Charles gripped the ball, and waved enticingly.

"C'mon over here," he yelled to Clendenon, "and pose for some pictures with the kids."

"Keep it," Clendenon yelled back.

"Aw, c'mon," Charles said, "it'll only take a minute. C'mon over and say hello to the kids, they're dyin' to meet you."

Clendenon muttered something to himself, then walked slowly over. Charles introduced him to the young boys, edged Clendenon in between them, and the photographer snapped the picture. Charles gave Clendenon his baseball back, and Clendenon slapped it hard into the palm of his glove.

"Thanks, man," Charles said.

Clendenon nodded, took two steps, stopped, and smiled.

"Get a job," he replied.

WASHINGTON, D. C. — —(NEA)—Basically, boating is so safe that the chances of injury aren't improved much if you stay ashore. Latest Coast Guard figures show fatalities averaged about one for every 40,000 people afloat during all of last year, and only one boat out of each 1,600 got into trouble. Nevertheless, 1,350 people did lose their lives in boating mishaps.

Though boat ownership goes up every year and accident figures do not, the Coast Guard is concerned.

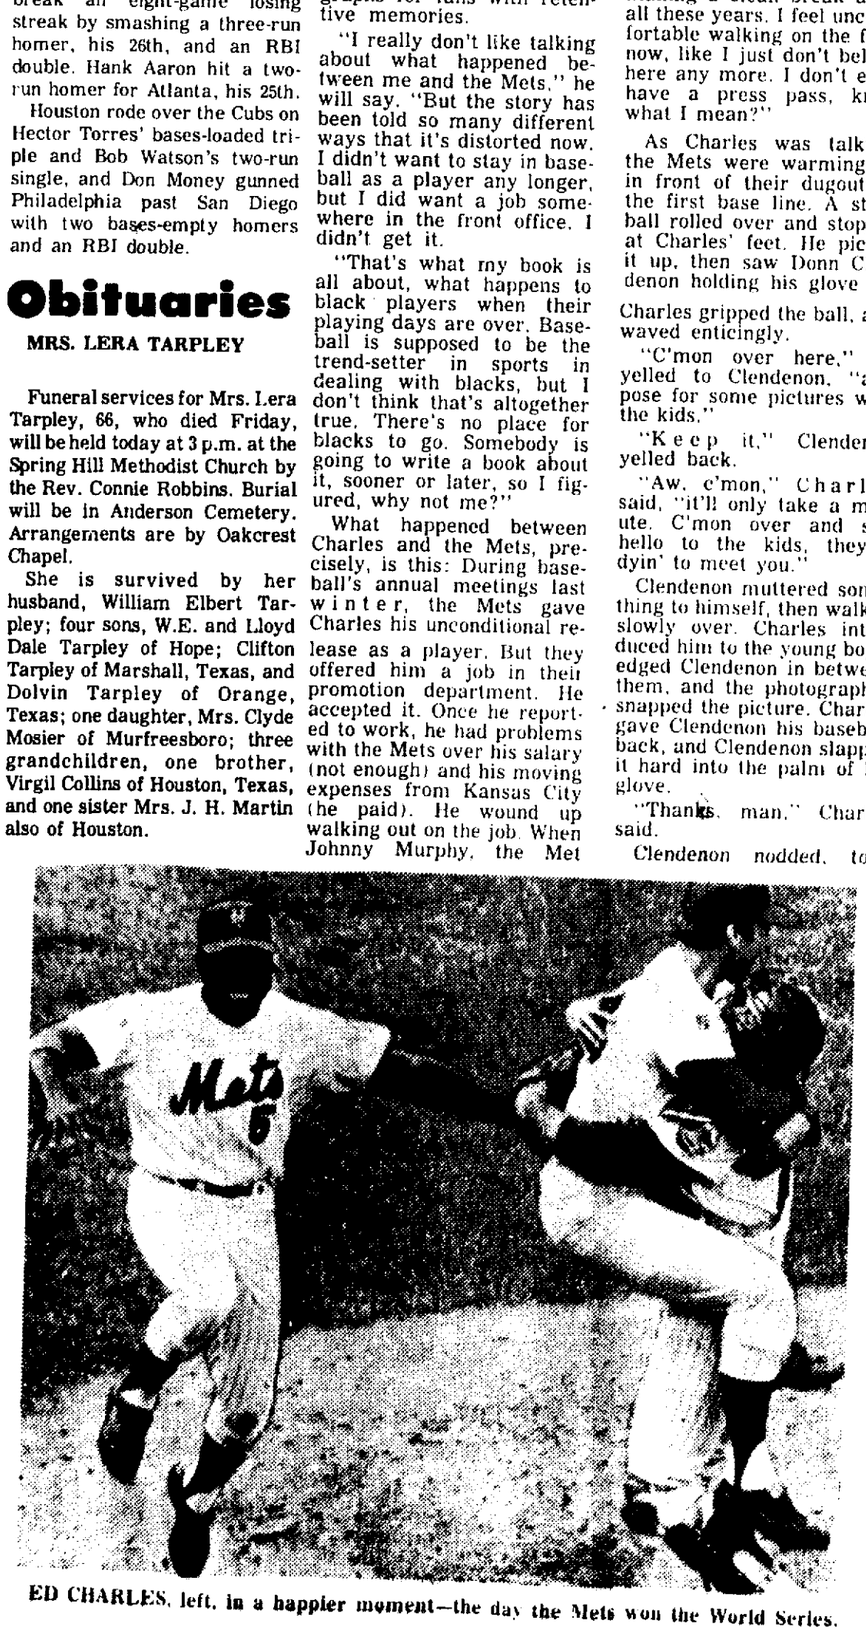

"Tragically," reports Coast Guard Commandant, Admiral Willard J. Smith, "a great many of those who have died in boating mishaps had lifesaving devices available but failed to use them." Coast Guard terminology records that "the principal cause of a vessel colliding with another vessel or with a fixed object (the cause of most accidents), is the failure of the operator to maintain a forward lookout" —a nautical way of saying the boat driver wasn't looking where he was going.

Most drownings occur in May, probably because a lot of people forget about stepping aboard boats carefully or handling them cautiously. Most accidents, however, occur during July and August. Most dangerous time of day? Two to six in the afternoon on a clear, calm Saturday, with the same kind of Sunday a close second.

Fifty-seven per cent of boats involved were on inland nontidal waters, and 35 per cent were along the coasts where the water is supposed to be rougher. The open oceans and the Gulf of Mexico had 4 per cent and the Great Lakes only 3.

Most lives were lost when boats turned over. Falling overboard or having the boat flood were the second and third reasons. A study of the figures show these were usually caused by improper loading or overloading of the boat, ignoring bad weather and rough water that the boat couldn't handle, or bad driving.

- Know your boat and what it can do, and the proper loading and power for it. Be sure it can float if swamped and has enough built-in flotation.
- Load your boat properly, and if it's small don't stand up.
- Tell friends ashore where you are going, when you'll be back and where you might stop along the way.
- Wear life jackets when conditions are hazardous, and keep them on children and nonswimmers at all times. Carry the legal safety equipment plus first-aid kit, paddle or oars, flares, bailer, anchor and line, boat hook, transistor radio for weather reports, drinking water and extra gas.
- Keep a good lookout, plus an extra one aboard to look back when you're towing a water skier.
- Operate at safe speeds, away from other boats and swimmers, and watch for any damage that might be caused by your wake

My Notes: Open Book for Courts

By IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—A trial in San Francisco concerning Earl Caldwell, a New York Times news reporter, has been of great interest to journalists. Mr. Caldwell's notes on Black Panther stories he had done were requested by the court for evidence. Caldwell refused to turn them over because, he felt, he must protect his sources.

I will not give the government authorities that opportunity with me. I'm 'fessing up. My notebooks contain only stuff I wasn't able to fit into my columns. Following is some of that information, and they can do with it what they will:

Lou Brock

- Lou Brock of the St. Louis Cardinals said that Astro-Turf might drive baseball players to wearing gym shoes full time.

"The turf has only so much give," said Brock, "and after that there is the concrete. So you don't get as good traction. It takes a lot of getting used to.

"I think it's harder on your legs in the long run. And it may shorten careers."

This year, Busch Stadium, the Cardinals' home grounds, has installed Astro-Turf. And Brock may have ulterior motives for doing away with the traditional spiked shoes. There is a product out called Lou Brock's sneakers.

- No one in baseball strikes out with the class of Richie Allen, also of the Cardinals. As he walks back to the dugout, he tucks his bat under his right arm and then removes his batting glove slowly, fingertip and pull, fingertip and pull. It looks like the next thing he'll remove is his top hat.

"All I have on my mind then," said Allen, "is how I allowed myself to get out. The pitcher doesn't get you out. You get yourself out. I mean, he's got to put that ball in the strike zone. A hitter oughta hit it."

Richie Allen

Dempsey

- Jack Dempsey, who just turned 75, said he stays in fighting trim by no longer eating his famous and fattening cheese cake in his Broadway restaurant. "I used to eat two pieces a day," said the former heavyweight champion. "I was getting to look like a wrestler."
- Leo Durocher, who eschews reading the sports pages, enjoys novels such as "The King" and "The Godfather." His wife, he said, recommends to him books she has liked. "The King," he said, is based on the life of his friend, Frank Sinatra.
- Hoyt Wilhelm, aged knuckleball pitcher for the Atlanta Braves, recalls the time Jimmy Piersall came to the plate and took a left-handed stance against him.

"I was surprised," said Wilhelm, "and I called to Jimmy, 'What's this?'

"And he said, 'Damn, if you're one-for-50 against a pitcher, you've got to try anything.'" Piersall struck out.

Hoyt Wilhelm

- J.C. Martin, now with the Chicago White Sox, was talking about his respect for Gil Hodges. "Hodges was one of the few managers I've ever played for who let me go to church on Sundays with my family," said Martin. "He said it was all right to come to the park late that day, as long as it wasn't too late."

Gil Hodges

Martin is Baptist while Hodges is, as he describes it, a "Sunday Catholic." "Religion is self-satisfying for me," said Hodges. "It gives me the feeling that the Top Man is on your side." And his fondness for Brooklyn, where he still lives, and where he played, is recalled in heavenly terms. "Baseball to Dodger fans in Brooklyn was not just life or death," said Hodges. "It was more important. It was a religion of its own to them."

If the Supreme Court wants to see any more of my notebooks, they're more than welcome. The notebooks are taking up too much office space as it is.

Millwood Shortchanged

DEGRAY Reservoir, in the Ouachita watershed,received the better of the ramp deal that did heavily - fished Millwood in the Red River watershed.

The facts will turn Millwood fishermen green with envy, red with anger, and an apopleptic purple.

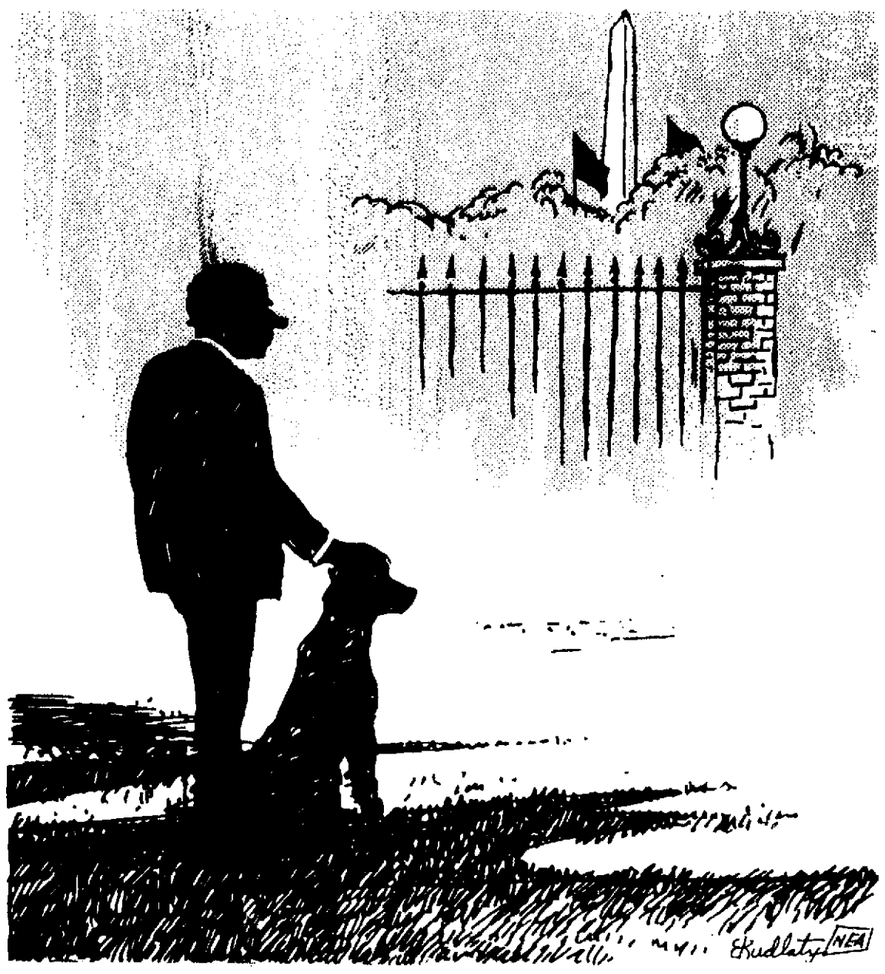

DeGray is blessed with 15 massive public launching ramps. At least 14 are complete. They are beautifully designed, wide enough for three simultaneous launchings, sloped enough to put the bigger boats, and with concrete steps down the side for convenience in getting into boats.

Only with all of the facilities on this beautiful new Ouachita Mountains lake, there are very, very few fishermen there so far.

The fishermen are down at Millwood, where their boats queue up at the pitifully few and tragically inadequate launching ramps. More boats put in daily at Paraloma where there are NO concrete ramps, than visit a single ramp on the Caddo in a week. I know, Clayton Tribble and I tried DeGray Reservoir on a Saturday. Ours was the only boat at a westside launching ramp.

I don't pretend to know the "whys" and"wherefores" except to say somebody goofed at Millwood, and it must be the Corps of Engineers. — Nashville News

The Loneliest Job in the World

Parole System Attacked

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Parole and furlough practices of the Rockefeller administration drew sharp criticism Thursday during a hearing by the Legislative Council Committee on Charitable, Penal and Correctional Institutions.

Prosecutor Gerald Pearson of Jonesboro and Sheriff S. C. Langston of Lee County were among those who delivered some of the sharpest criticism ever of Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller's prison officials.

The hearing was held as a result of a resolution by Rep. Roscoe Brown of Jonesboro, who called for a study of furlough and parole laws after complaints from the public in his area about some practices.

Correction Commissioner Robert Sarver also testified at the hearing, accusing Pearson and Langston of taking some liberties with the truth, but also acknowledged that he made some blunders of judgment, for which legislators took him to task.

Pearson said Sarver had failed to exercise "plain horse sense" in some of the most extreme misjudgments, which involved the release of convicts who committed additional crimes while on furloughs granted by the commissioner.

Langston said the sheriffs in the state were frustrated by the number of paroles.

"We're just sick and tired of it," he said.

He added that some sheriffs would rather have a criminal confined to their county jails now, rather than send a man to prison only to find that he has been paroled or furloughed in a very little time.

John Haley, chairman of the Board of Correction, also spoke and produced what he said were statistics showing a 30 per cent decline in the number of paroles granted in 1969 from 1966.

Sen. Clarence Bell of Parkin, apparently angered by Sarver's remarks, stood a few feet from the commissioner at one point and said: "The prosecutors are tired of it, the sheriffs are tired of it, the people in my area are tired of it, I'm tired of it, and we are going to do something about it if you don't clean up that mess."

Haley's figures showed that the population in the prisons dropped from about 2,200 in 1966 to about 1,300 at the end of 1969.

Auto Workers Take Demands to Chrysler

By A.F. MAHAN
Associated Press Writer

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers take their new contract demands to Chrysler Corp. today with the knowledge Chrysler again is a money maker.

The move to Chrysler followed by a day UAW President Leonard Woodcock's assertion that if there is no new contract with any of the Big Three—General Motors, Ford or Chrysler—by Sept. 15 there will be a strike against one of them.

The UAW laid its demands before GM Wednesday and took them to Ford Thursday, when Woodcock voiced his strike threat.

Chrysler issued a second-quarter financial statement Thursday showing an $8.1 million profit, following successive quarterly losses of $4.4 million and $29.4 million.

While it got back into the black in the April-June quarter, Chrysler's loss for the year's first half totaled $21.3 million, compared with a first-half profit of $89.4 million in 1969.

Current three-year UAW contracts with the Big Three expire Sept. 14. Hourly wages under them average $4.02 and the companies estimate fringe benefits add an additional $1.75 hourly per worker.

The UAW is calling for a substantial pay increase, elimination of the ceiling on increases possible under the cost-of-living escalator clause and retirement on $500 a month after 30 years service.

The International Union of Electrical Workers, IUE, which represents 32,000 in appliance and electrical plants of GM, opened bargaining Thursday at GM on demands closely paralleling those of the UAW.

If no contract is negotiated with any of the Big Three by Sept. 15, Woodcock said, the union would follow what he termed traditional practice of shutting down one and leaving the other two in production.

School Plan at El Dorado O.K.

EL DORADO, Ark. (AP) — U.S. District Court Judge Oren Harris tentatively approved Thursday the desegregation plan for the El Dorado school system.

The 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals at St. Louis ordered Harris last March to consider the desegregation of El Dorado's elementary schools. The court approved the district's plan for the upper six grades.

Harris approved the plan that calls for the closing of two small, formerly all - black schools. Harris noted that the plan would also result in two all-black schools and one predominantly all-white school. For this reason, Harris only tentatively approved the plan and ordered the El Dorado School Board to report to him within 60 days after schools open this fall on the racial balance of the schools.

Harris said in an effort to remove racial identity of the three schools in question, more black teachers would be ordered to the predominantly white schools and more white teachers to the predominantly black schools.

Arbitration on Campus Suggested

WASHINGTON (AP) — While the President's Commission on Campus Unrest barely has begun to gather outside testimony, a proposal has been advanced internally calling for federal arbitration of college disputes.

Advocates among the commission staff urge a feasibility study based on creation of a "National Education Mediation Board."

The tentative proposal envisions the agency as empowered to enter campus crises as an arbitrator, provided both administration and some portion of students agree.

Meanwhile, the commission resumed hearings today after being told Thursday that national leaders, particularly Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, have fanned the flames of student violence with their public remarks.

"It's only logical that people hate college students" after listening to the vice president, declared Eva Jefferson, whose testimony was praised highly by the commission and applauded by a packed gallery.

"People who look to the vice president for shaping their opinions have got to get out of that trap," said Miss Jefferson, president of the Northwestern University student body.

Huge Cuts in Arms Would Endanger U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John C. Stennis, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee says there is a need to trim the military procurement bill, but huge cuts would endanger United States security.

The Mississippi Democrat told senators Thursday existing commitments to more than 40 nations alone make adoption of the $19 billion measure necessary.

"We play a dangerous game if we reduce the defense budget simply to make more funds available for massive federal funding of other programs," Stennis said.

The procurement bill has already been trimmed more than $1 billion below what the Nixon administration recommended.

Stennis told his colleagues he had no intention of making it seem he was against judicious cuts.

He suggested a re-examination of U.S. treaty commitments to determine their validity and necessity, but meanwhile, "I think we are going to have to face the hard facts and recognize that these treaty commitments are part and parcel of our military requirement"

The procurement bill is basically the Pentagon's request for money to buy new ships, planes, missiles, tanks and other weapons.

Old Men in Congress Hate Reform

WASHINGTON (AP) — House elders are feeling the pinch of congressional reform and they don't like it one bit.

Although the reform bill moving slowly through the House is a long way from enactment, amendments adopted so far have cut sharply into the privileged domain of committee chairmen.

The latest one, put in Thursday by the bipartisan group leading the reform fight, would require that one-third of a committee's investigative funds go to the minority party.

Now, funds usually are divided by informal agreements between the chairmen and the ranking Republicans on the committee. On some committees the minority does quite well but on others it gets short shrift.

The chairmen also were stunned earlier in the proceedings by the adoption of an amendment banning the use of proxy votes in committee.

Thurmond is Critical of Nixon,IRS

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Strom Thurmond has accused President Nixon of breaking faith with the South on school desegregation and following policies which could cost him the White House in 1972.

The South Carolina Republican, who helped Nixon on court Southern delegates and voters in his campaign for the Presidency, said the White House now is full of "liberal and ultra-liberal advisers."

He said they represent the philosophy of the Northeast, which never supported Nixon, and will not in the next election.

The White House refused to comment on Thurmond's speech.

"If President Nixon is to be successful in 1972, he must listen to the voice of the great majority," Thurmond declared in a lonely Senate chamber Friday.

Parting political company with the administration, Thurmond denounced the Internal Revenue Service decision to deny tax exemption to segregated private schools, and the assignment of a Justice Department task force to oversee public school desegregation.

Thurmond called that "the proposed invasion by 100 carpetbagging Justice Department lawyers for the purpose of assuring forced integration"

"This is the sort of program which we would expect to get from a Democratic administration," said Thurmond, who once was a Democrat.

Thurmond said Nixon had pledged him support for the tax exempt status of private schools.

"This decision breaks faith with the people of the South," Thurmond said. "As recently as Feb. 19, 1970, the President assured me positively that he supported the continuance of the tax-exempt status of private schools. The people of the South were counting upon the President's word."

"I am warning the Nixon administration ... that the people of the South and the people of the nation will not support such unreasonable policies," Thurmond said. "I remind the chief executive that the presidency is an elective office, and that what the people give, the people also can take away."

Multiple Sclerosis Victim Builds Up 13-Restaurant Chain

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Don "Taco Pete" Peters never went to high school and at the age of 37 is so crippled by multiple sclerosis that he can move nothing but his head.

He might strike you as an unlikely prospect for success in the business world, but his motto is "A guy can do anything he sets his mind to do"—and in his case, it works.

Peters dropped out of school after the eighth grade, spent some time in the Army and later went to work in the construction industry. By 1960 he had developed advanced symptoms of multiple sclerosis—a hardening of the tissues—and became totally disabled in 1965 at the age of 32.

But with the help of his family and friends he has developed a chain of 13 restaurants called "Taco Pete." The Taco is a Mexican sandwich based on a tortilla—President Nixon is one of its aficionados—and the restaurant motto is "South of the border food in north of the border style."

The restaurants are in Wichita, Dodge City, Pittsburg and Arkansas City, Kan., and Tulsa, Okla.

Peters opened the first in 1967 with an investment of only $10,000.

"We saved a lot of money," he explains, "by doing everything ourselves—designing our own places, building and renovating equipment, even making up our own insignia and brochures."

Peters depends on his wife, Marge, and friends to write down or sketch his ideas, to try out his new recipes, and even to bathe, dress, shave and feed him.

He visits each restaurant regularly, traveling in a small van.

"Sometimes I take the family with me on these trips," he says. The family includes three daughters, Debby, 12, Diana, 10, and Kathy, 5.

Peters starts his day with three hours of therapy, then enters the van to attend meetings with plumbers, carpenters, franchisers and managers in the operation of the business which now employes about 150 people and is worth several hundred thousand dollars in property alone.

Dumas to Get Appliance Plant

DUMAS, Ark. (AP)—Bersted Manufacturing Division of McGraw Edison Co. has announced that it will locate an electrical appliance plant here.

Bersted President Jack McDermott said the plant would employ about 250 people and would produce electric fans, heaters and other small appliances.

Gross Output Turns Up Fractionally

By STERLING F. GREEN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A tiny gain in national output and a tiny slowdown of inflation have been acclaimed by administration economists as the long-awaited turning point for an ailing economy.

The broadest measure of economic growth, real Gross National Product or "real GNP," gained three-tenths of 1 per cent in the April-June quarter, the Commerce Department announced.

This followed two quarters of decline; although insignificant in amount, the trend indicated the business slowdown had hit bottom and turned up. It seemed to be a guarantee against any serious recession.

High administration officials provided this forecast of limited and gradual gains during the rest of this year and into 1971:

—A small further increase in real GNP in the present quarter, followed by a larger jump in the fourth quarter—but amounting only to a growth rate of 2 to 3 per cent over the next six months.

—Some further rise of unemployment. Officials believe the worst is yet to come, even though the unemployment rate dropped to 4.7 per cent in June after hitting 5 per cent in May.

It will go above 5 per cent in some of the months ahead, administration economists predicted, before a gradual improvement takes hold. It was judged that unemployment would not dip to 4 per cent until possibly late 1971.

—An easing of interest rates, reflected by this fall in slightly better mortgage terms and reviving home building activities.

—A gradual slowing of price increases, to a rate of 3 to 3½ per cent by the end of the year on the most comprehensive barometer of inflation, the so-called "GNP deflator" which measures price movements at every level of production and distribution in the economy.

Although members of the President's Council of Economic Advisers were jubilant the pickup they had been forecasting had occurred—along with some additional evidence of the long-promised slowdown from inflation—all recognized the improvement was modest indeed.

The curbing of inflation, all conceded, had been more painful in terms of joblessness, lost profits, depressed housing markets, and tight money than the Nixon administration had anticipated when it set its course of gradual restraint 18 months ago.

Dock Strike in Britain May Spread

LONDON (AP) — The nationwide dock strike that has idled Britain's ports might spread to other industries if troops are used to unload ships, the leader of the nation's largest union warned today.

"Before troops are used, the unions should be consulted to see if there are other ways of moving essential cargoes," said Jack Jones, general secretary of the transport and General Workers' Union.

The strike by 47,000 longshoremen is in its third day, and 35,000 British soldiers are on standby alert to unload food and other vital cargo from the ships if necessary. The troops were mobilized under a declaration of national emergency signed by Queen Elizabeth and would be used to unload perishable goods.

But there appeared little likelihood the troops would be used before Monday. The government wants to avoid endangering chances for a settlement by angering the unions.

Both sides in the walkout have ignored government efforts to bring them back to the bargaining table, and Jones said the strike could last a long time. "The dockers are digging in," he said.

Army officers visited several ports today to map procedures to be used if the troops have to go to work.

The government named Lord Pearson Friday as chairman of a four-man court of inquiry into the strike. Pearson, 70, headed the 1966 seamen's strike probe.

Anti-Poverty Program Run Privately

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sixteen states will share in a new antipoverty program in which private companies will be paid on their ability to train poor children.

Eighteen school districts in the 16 states were selected by the Office of Economic Opportunity Tuesday to take part in the one-year experiment designed to improve mathematical and reading skills.

The districts were selected from among 85 applicants because, "We tried to arrange this experiment to get as broad a social characteristic as possible," said John O. Wilson, OEO planning director.

Twenty-eight thousand children live in the districts, OEO said. They will be trained by six private firms which will be paid for results.

Pollution Chairman Has Lung Ailment

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (AP) — Victor Calvo, chairman of the San Francisco Bay Area Air Pollution Control District board of directors, has a chest ailment. He says his doctors tell him it could have been caused in part by polluted air.

Calvo, 46, says his family physician and a lung specialist said they didn't know exactly what is wrong with him and so could not spell out the exact cause.

"All I know is that I've had this mild bronchial and pulmonary infection since early spring," he said recently.
